Dodd-Frank Reform Act Statement

In July 2012 the U.S finalised the Dodd-Frank Reform act which requires Companies, whose products contain metals derived from minerals defined as 'Conflict Materials' which include Tantalum, Tin, Tungsten and Gold, to report annually to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

The act looks at the entire supply chain from raw materials through to finished goods and as such is a complex piece of legislation to comply with.

Transonics, although not manufacturing, confirm our supply chain is committed to complying with all relevant legislations, details of which can be provided by our principals on request.

Transonics is dedicated to the pursuit of responsible procurement practices and upholding human rights. Accordingly we will design and implement any necessary processes to facilitate compliance with current regulations.
